

BELMONT EXPLAINS HIS CONTRIBUTION

TELLS INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE WHAT HE SPENT TRYING TO HAVE PARKER ELECTED IN 1904.

SUM QUARTER MILLION

Gave Freely to the Campaign Fund—Predatory Wealth, As Bryan Called It, Used for Democracy.

Washington, July 16.—A quarter of a million dollars was the estimate which August Belmont, testifying today before the senate committee investigating campaign contributions, placed upon his contribution to the democratic national campaign in 1904. He was not sure that was the sum, but was "satisfied to let it go at that."

"My habit has been that if I feel responsible for anything my obligation is not measured by dollars and cents," said Mr. Belmont, when Senator Paynter asked if his large contribution embarrassed him.

Mr. Belmont was a member of the campaign executive committee that year. Mr. Belmont told first of ad-

The father, in his statement, said he believed the boy did as he was told.

WEDDING OF MISS CROCKER BIG SOCIAL EVENT; $1,000,000 WORTH OF PRESENTS

Miss Jennie Crocker and Malcolm D. Whitman

The wedding of Miss Jennie Crocker, of the wealthy California family, to Malcolm D. Whitman on July 15 will be one of the big social events of the season. Miss Crocker, who is worth several millions in her own right, is popular in the east as well as in the west. It is conservatively estimated that the presents of the bride will exceed $1,000,000 in value, for she is connected both by ties of blood and marriage with some of the richest families in the United States. Whitman is a resident of New York and was formerly a champion tennis player.

valuing $50,000, to the democratic national committee. He said he had been reimbursed $42,000.

"Those committees always start out that way," he explained. "They ask for advances and then begin to raise funds. Later they reimburse me so that the balance of $8,000 only was a contribution."

The capitalist remembered he had paid "two small items" of $1,000 each to Morris Cuccor, a Hungarian leader in New York. Senator Jones asked Mr. Belmont for the total of his contributions. The witness thought he could not remember.

"Was it more than $50,000?"

"O yes."

"$100,000?"

"It must have been more than that."

"Was it more than $250,000?" pursued Senator Jones.

"I doubt it. I tried to remember, but I find I cannot remember," said Mr. Belmont.

Sensor Jones tried a new tack. "Did you contribute by check or cash?"

"Very often by cash."

"And check?" queried Senator Paynter.

"Seldom by check. I cannot remember the exact amount, but I am satisfied with an estimate of $250,000."

Sensor Jones asked Mr. Belmont how much he contributed in addition to the $250,000 given to the national campaign. The witness replied that he always contributed to the campaign in his own locality and to the state campaign. He was not able to tell how much that made in addition to the $250,000.

He contributed without expecting reward of any kind and gave "purely as a democrat," he said. Mr. Belmont "guessed" the total of the national democratic fund in 1904 was $600,000 or $700,000. None was received from corporations.

Henry Havemeyer, he said, contributed $10,000 personally, but the amount was returned, having been regarded as undesirable.

Belmont, in an interview, said: "Publicity of campaign contributions is only one of the several things I wanted to talk with the governor about. I do not care to say more now but will make a statement after our talk."

Mr. Belmont had less than five minutes to wait before Mr. Conway left. "I merely called to felicitate Governor Wilson on his nomination," said Mr. Conway.

LATHAM WAS KILLED BY A WILD BUFFALO

Famous Anglo-French Airman Gored To Death In South African Forest, June 7, Is Word Received.

Paris, July 16.—Hubert Latham, the famous Anglo-French airman and one of the pioneers of heavier than air aviation, was killed by a wild buffalo June 7, during a hunt in the French Sudan. Latham's death occurred in the Chari river near the Bahr el Salamat of Lake Chad. The governor general of French Equatorial Africa, Martial Henri Merlin in telegraphing the news today to the minister of the colony says Latham was out with a number of natives in the forest when he shot and wounded a buffalo which immediately charged and gored and trampled him to death.

Paris, July 15.—Hubert Latham who was the first aviator to make any notable flights in a monoplane, the Antoinette, acquired fame as a young man in February 1905 in company with his cousin, Jacques Faure, he made a balloon trip across the English channel voyaging from the Crystal Palace in London to the gates of Paris in 6 hours. On July 19, 1909, he made an unsuccessful attempt to cross the channel in a monoplane which was considered a most daring feat at that time. He fell into the sea owing to his motor breaking down and on his second attempt, in the same month a similar fate met him. Latham was also renowned as a daring motor boat man and a great hunter.

JUDGE OF COMMERCE COURT IS IMPEACHED

Judge Robert W. Archibald Summoned Before Senate to Stand Trial for High Crimes and Misdemeanors.

Washington, July 16.—Judge Robert W. Archibald of the commerce court, the ninth man in the history of the United States to be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors, was summoned today before the senate to stand trial upon charges made by the house. Senator Gallinger and other senators were sworn to "do impartial justice" and the house was then informed that the senate would sit as the "high court of impeachment." A recess was taken at 12:30 until Friday.

Senator Bailey's resolution to put the senate on record in rebuking President Taft for his attitude and public utterances on the Lorimer matter was kept from a vote in the senate today by the resumption of the Archibald impeachment case after Senator Bailey in a two hours speech had arraigned the president severely.

New York, July 16.—The efforts of the police to run down the five men who early this morning shot and killed the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, in front of the Hotel Metropole, a few hours before he was to give evidence against the police about gambling graft, has resulted today in the arrest of three men. The identity of one of them, Louis Libby, as a member of the party who did the shooting, has as yet not been established, however, to the satisfaction of the police.

TWO BAD TIRES TODAY AT CHIPPEWA FALLS

Chippewa Falls, July 16.—Fire today in the clothing store of St. Claire, Kubat and Company damaged the stock to the extent of $15,000, partly covered by insurance and $1,000 damage was done to the building. The case of the fire was crossed electric wires.

AMERICANS TRAPPED IF REBELS DESTROY MEXICAN RAILROAD

Five Hundred Americans in Danger And May Be Warned to Leave Country at Once to Escape Isolation.

Juarez, Mex., July 16.—More than 500 American citizens together with their wives and families in towns along the Mexican Northwestern railway are threatened with isolation far from the American border with scant means of escaping the depredations of Mexican rebels. Sufficient facts became known today of the real situation along the Mexican Northwestern to warrant the statement that it would cause no surprise if Americans in all towns along the line were warned to leave Mexico at once.

General Pascual Orozco, Jr. within the last 24 hours had ordered the Mexican Northwestern railway destroyed between Pearson and Madera, 207 miles southwest of here, but the order has been mysteriously rescinded. Though the destruction of the Northwestern for a hundred miles in a mountainous region where it cannot be rebuilt for months, has been delayed, officials of the road are in constant fear that it may be done at any moment.

The railroad is owned by the Pearson interests, a British corporation, which likewise owns the Madera lumber company. Nearly all of the employees however numbering more than 500 are Americans. It was said officials did not wish to ask the British government to make representation for protection for while the property the employees are American.

For the Pearson officials on the other hand to order an exodus of their employees would mean to leave the property and supplies at the mercy of the rebels who have already looted the Madera company's storehouse of several thousand dollars worth of goods.

That the Mexican Northwestern railroad along which most of the rebel army now is stretched is doomed to destruction is generally admitted for the rebels have already harassed the government forces moving northwestward from Chihuahua city.

It is feared that after the destruction of the railroad and the telegraph Americans marooned in the interior would have no redress if depredations by irresponsible rebel bands began. It is desired, however, to take no chances and the women and children in the American colonies in Madera and Pearson will be moved at once to the United States.

Though the hungry army it is considered may cause trouble in confiscating supplies and possibly in looting the many handsome residences erected by Americans, more apprehension is really thought that the rebels may demand the arms and ammunition which the Americans have for self protection.

SPEND HALF MILLION ON STATE BUILDINGS

Construction Work Progressing at Twelve State Institutions As Result of Legislature's Liberality.

Madison, Wis., July 16.—Over a half million dollars' worth of buildings are now in process of erection at the twelve state institutions under the direction of the state board of control. All these buildings and improvements were authorized by the 1911 legislature. That body was perhaps the most liberal of any in the last decade in providing room and facilities for caring for the dependent portion of the population.

At the state insane hospital at Mendota, a new power house and laundry buildings have been built. The equipment will be installed so that the plant will be ready for operation by Sept. 1. The total expenditure aggregates $80,000.

At the Northern hospital near Oshkosh a dormitory for nurses to cost $25,000 is now under construction and will be ready for occupancy Nov. 1.

At the state school for the deaf at Delavan a laundry building is being erected and repairs made to a number of the buildings. The total cost will be $15,441. At the state school for the blind at Janesville the barn is being remodeled, a silo erected, and bids for a new dining room will be opened July 19. These improvements will be completed about Jan. 1 and the total expenditure will be $21,000. New cottages, a schoolhouse, and the remodeling of the barn at the boys' industrial school at Waubesa are now under way. Excavation for the schoolhouse is under way and all of the improvements are to be finished Jan. 1. The aggregate expenditure at this institution is $34,000. At the state prison at Waupun the erection of a dining room is about completed, and a new cell room will be erected later. Improvements here will aggregate $68,100. The foundation for the new hospital for the criminal insane at Waupun has already been laid. The land upon which it is erected cost $20,000, and the building, which will be completed Jan. 1, will cost an additional $100,000. At the state school at Sparta various improvements on the present building will be made at a cost of $7,600. New cottages and a contagious hospital to be finished the year will be erected at the school for the feeble minded at Chippewa Falls. The cost of all the improvements will be $37,000.

About $45,000 will be spent upon improvements at the state reformatory at Green Bay. An addition to the administration building will be completed, and the erection of a center building, offices and schoolhouses is under way. At the state sanatorium at Wales, the infirmary will be equipped, shafts remodeled and two new shafts erected. An assembly hall will be built. The new building with various other improvements will cost the state $42,200. The aggregate amount which the state will spend on all the institutions is $589,400.

AUTO VERSUS MOTORCYCLE IN SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN

Madison, Wis., July 16.—William A. Kay of Pierce county, candidate for the state senate in the tenth senatorial district, has adopted the motorcycle as his means of transportation from place to place throughout St. Croix, Pierce, Pepin and Buffalo counties. This example of political resourcefulness has prompted his opponent, George Skogren, of River Falls, to buy an automobile. Both said to be making a house to house canvass of the entire district.

SCHOOL CLERKS OBJECT AT INCREASED BURDENS

Madison, Wis., July 16.—As a result of the numerous changes in the school census blank as approved by the state board of public affairs, so much information is required that several school clerks have sent notification to the state superintendent that they will resign. The board calls for complete information of school attendance, with detailed data on all of the school work of the district. Many of the clerks claim it would require too much attention. In many cases the office of school clerk is an honorary position.

FIX PRINCIPLE IN RATE CASE TODAY

Interstate Commission Rules It Cannot Attempt to Give One City Advantage Over Another by Fixing Rates.

Washington, July 16.—A far-reaching principle was laid down by the interstate commerce commission when it declined in deciding the case of the Globe Milling company against the C. M. & St. Paul railway to make ineffective a freight rate arrangement now in force whereby Watertown, Wis., is placed on a parity with Minneapolis, Minn., in the milling of rye when the product moves to eastern destinations. In disposing of the case the commission says: "This commission does not by fixing rates attempt to overcome advantages which one city may have by reason of its natural or geographical location. The fact that a carrier has by a certain rate adjustment as to one commodity enabled a manufacturer or producer to overcome the natural disadvantages of his location is not in itself a ground upon which the commission is justified in establishing a like adjustment as to another commodity."

NEW BEDFORD STRIKE AFFECTS MANY MILLS

Twenty-One Cotton Mills Are Closed Down by the Strike of the Workers.

New Bedford, Mass., July 16.—The gates of 21 cotton cloth manufacturing plants in New Bedford were closed today and 13,000 operatives were idle as a result of the strike of weavers and loom fixers for the abolition of the grading system of payments. Determined efforts were made to extend the strike to seven to other corporations.

Picket lines were established, but there was no trouble during the early morning hours.

The grocers of the south end held a meeting today at which it was decided to do business on a strictly cash basis during the strike.

The agents of the seven corporations not yet affected by the strike said they were operating under normal conditions with all of their employees at work.

White Plains, N. Y., July 16.—All arguments were presented in Justice Keogh's court today in what is believed to be the last day in the fight of Harry K. Thaw to secure his freedom from the Matthew state hospital. Clarence J. Shearn, Thaw's counsel, submitted his client's case to the court. Harry Thaw's mother and her daughters, Mrs. Carnegie and Alice Thaw, formerly the Countess of Yarmouth, were in court. William T. Jerome, counsel for the state, will present briefs. A decision is expected by the end of the month.

STONE PLACES ENGINEERS' CASE BEFORE COMMITTEE

New York, July 16.—Warren S. Stone, chief of the locomotive engineers, resumed his presentation of the case of the engineers of the eastern railway when the arbitration committee met today. DOCKERS FOR WHITE STAR LINE HAVE RESUMED WORK

Liverpool, Eng., July 16.—The dockers' strike which began here yesterday when the workmen refused to register under the new clearing house scheme connected with the national insurance act, already shows signs of collapse. The men employed by the White Star line started work again today in considerable numbers under the protection of police.

DENVER FLOOD WAKE MARKED BY WRECKAGE

Five Hundred People Homeless and Destitute as Result of Sunday Night Disaster.

Denver, Colo., July 16.—The cloud burst and flood in Cherry Creek Sunday has passed into history leaving a great heap of debris, deposits along the boulevards and the ruins of wrecked homes and with two known fatalities. The list of injured has swelled to eight. The mayor's relief committee organized thoroughly for continued work began this morning the final search of the wreckage, for it is believed the score reported as missing are flood victims. The 600 refugees from the flood district are destitute of everything but the clothing they wore when driven out of the district. They will be cared for by the city until the last are rehabilitated. Rooms in hotels have been hired for some not accommodated at the auditorium.

Of the million dollars flood loss placed upon personal property by Mayor Arnold in his revised estimate more than half falls upon the stock in the wholesale and warehouse districts. Quantities of stored food stuffs are being disposed of at less than half price, because of water damage. Few of the concerns in the district carried flood insurance.

Denver, July 16.—The first day's play of the Western Association tournament on the links of the Denver country club, nine holes of which were lost in the Cherry Creek flood, Sunday, began today at 8 o'clock over the remaining nine holes.

A PLAIN TALK ABOUT CLEARANCE SALES AND THEIR DOLLAR VALUE TO YOU.

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager Wanamaker's, Philadelphia.

If you do not take advantage of these clearance sales in July you have paid too much for your merchandise during the previous part of the year.

All merchants must naturally make enough profit to continue in business. They could not sell goods below cost now unless they had sold them sufficiently above cost before to show a general profit on the year.

And nearly all of them are selling goods below cost now.

Therefore, if you are going to get the most out of your money, you must buy when prices are down as well as when prices are up.

Any shrewd woman who can see six months ahead will have a fatter pocket-book clear to Christmas time if she will only follow the advertising carefully now and plan her purchases according to her future as well as her present needs.

Thousands of people, of course, will not follow this suggestion, but that makes it all the more all valuable to the other thousands of people who will.

If all of you understood the dollar-value to you of these Clearance Events all the stores in this city could not possibly hold the crowds, and these sales would not last very long.

No merchant with a good business head cuts his prices down to red figures and absolute losses because he likes to. He does it because he has to. He knows he has got to clear that stock at any cost. There is nothing affectionate about a buyer's lead pencil when he reduces a price. And there is nothing soft-hearted about a merchant when he pays his good money to advertise those cut prices in this newspaper.

He does so because he knows that there are so many thousands of you readers waiting for those prices. And if you don't see those prices you won't come to his store. And if you don't come to his store he will not be able to clear his merchandise.

Now you know why this paper is filled full of bargains at this season of the year and why it will be a mighty good plan on your part to begin looking for those bargains right now and to continue to look for them on every page of this paper from day to day.

You will find in this advertising the biggest human interest story you ever read. For in these days, whatever affects the pocket-book affects the heart.

GETS FOURTEEN YEARS AT STATE REFORMATORY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., July 14.—Fourteen years at the state reformatory at Green Bay was the sentence meted by Judge E. Ray Stevens to Harry Williams, of Chicago, who on Sunday shot Patrolman George Schwartz through both arms in an encounter. The charge was assault with intent to do great bodily harm and murder, and the penalty was the maximum. He is 24 years old and claims to hail from Chicago. When ordered by the patrolman to leave town, he resisted, and in a rough and tumble fight that ensued the officer's revolver fell from his pocket and was seized by Peterson, who fired three shots. Peterson has been loitering about the city since Ringling's circus left on July 2.

CHIEF APPLEBY BACK FROM HIS VACATION

Enjoyed Camp-Up River, Motor Tour To Iowa And Several Days At Lake Delavan.

Chief of Police George Appleby resumed his official duties this morning, having completed his fifteen days vacation. The Chief spent four days up the Rock River at the Taylor cottage, five or six days on an automobile trip through western Illinois and eastern Iowa, and the rest of his time at home and at Lake Delavan. He was accompanied on the automobile tour by his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, and infant granddaughter. Starting from this city late in the afternoon they took supper at Rockford and went on to Dixon that evening, spending the night there. From there they went to Sterling, Moline, and Rock Island where they made a brief stop, some of the party visiting the federal arsenal. The Mississippi river was crossed on the government bridge, and Davenport was reached the second evening. Chief Appleby has a sister here and after a visit at her home they made short trips to De Witt and other smaller towns.

Excellent roads were met with throughout the trip and one blow-out was the only untoward incident experienced. Returning, however, their experiences were not so pleasant. Mr. Brown was obliged to return home promptly and took the train. A chauffeur was engaged to bring the machine and the rest of the party home. In crossing the bridge at Rock Island he ran into a wagon, smashing a front lamp, and later ran the machine into a ditch. The occupants were not in the least injured but their confidence in the chauffeur was shaken and they decided to come home by rail.

Crops throughout the country traversed appeared to be very promising. Most of the acreage seemed to be planted to corn. Four and five teams were working in many fields and the corn was so tall that only the driver's head and shoulders could be seen.

Davenport, says Chief Appleby, is a town in which the lid is clamped on tight as far as the sale of liquor is concerned. Saloons close promptly at ten o'clock every night and on Sundays and legal holidays, not even excepting the Fourth of July. There are sixty-five men on its police force.

A singular and sad circumstance in Chief Appleby's vacation was that on the first day of it he went up the river with the late Walter L. Taylor, and on the last day he saw him buried.

WALTER L. TAYLOR.

The sudden death of Walter L. Taylor has come as a decided shock to his many friends throughout the city. Always the leading spirit in all undertakings he was interested in, popular with all classes, he leaves a place that will be hard to fill. Walter L. Taylor was one of Janesville's young business men, most interested in the city's welfare and prosperity. He was a warm friend and faithful to all trusts imposed upon him. His sad death has saddened the hearts of many not of his immediate family.

BIG EXHIBIT OPENS WEDNESDAY MORNING

Commercial Club Sends Out Invitation to the Public to Attend The Exhibition at City Hall.

In the following letter sent out today by Sec. Lane of the Commercial club, explanation is given of the importance of the Industrial Commission's photographs of accident preventions, precautions for machinery.

As you are no doubt aware, since the passage of the Workmen's Compensation Law by the last legislature of our state, the office of Labor Commissioner has been abolished and the Industrial Commission created. This commission has been in conference with representatives of the laboring men, as well as of manufacturers, and has formulated certain rules with reference to the safe guarding of machinery so as to avoid accidents. Without question you have received a copy of these rules. The manufacturers and employers of labor will, no doubt, be given a reasonable time to comply with these rules, but you can appreciate that, even if all will have to do as requested. There is no doubt but what the manufacturer wants to avoid accidents and will want to comply with these rules, but he does not always know just how to protect certain machines that he might have in operation in his plant.

In order that everyone may have an opportunity of seeing just how machinery can be cheaply and effectively guarded, THE COMMERCIAL CLUB of this city has arranged, through the Industrial Commission, for an exhibition to be held in the city hall for two weeks beginning July 17th. At this exhibition you may see photographs, blue-prints and drawings showing different kinds of machinery and indicating how they can be safeguarded. In our opinion it will pay you well to attend this exhibition, for the reason that you can save expense if you know just how to guard a machine. The exhibition will show you how you can do practically all of this work of safeguarding, yourself, without the necessity of buying numerous patented devices.

We extend you a cordial invitation to inspect these photographs, drawings and blue-prints at any time during the last two weeks in July. Arrangements have been made to have the Industrial Commission here for the evening of Wednesday, July 24th. Addresses on topics of special interest will be given by Commissioners Crownhart, Beck and Commons.

It is said that, except in Sweden, interest in the Olympic games is not so keen in Europe as it is in America. We can guess why. John Bull looks so small there that he can be seen only with a microscope. It is the same with the other countries. This being the case, we can not blame our friends across the pond for minimizing the importance of the games.

AUTOS ENTERED IN RELIABILITY TOUR STOPPED IN CITY

Tourists on Way From Beloit to Madison Stopped at Myers Hotel Corner for Five Minutes This Morning.

Eighteen cars in all, including the fourteen entrants in the Sentinel ad Schanden trophy events, pilot, pilot and judge's cars, in the Wisconsin State Automobile association, passed through this city between eight and nine o'clock on the first lap of the second day's run. The pilot and pathfinder's cars arrived here a few minutes after eight and half an hour later the other cars began to arrive. The first car left Beloit at eight o'clock this morning, and the others were sent out one minute apart, following what is called the middle road, and entering the city on Center avenue, stop of five minutes was made by each car at the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets near the Myers Hotel, and they then left for Milton and Whitewater, enroute to Madison via Fort Atkinson, Jefferson, Lake Mills, Waterloo, Marshall, and Sun Prairie. The noon control was established at Madison, and after checking in and getting dinner, the motorists left for Baraboo, which is to be the night control, going by way of Middleton, Sauk City and Prairie du Sac.

The first car into the city was No. 22, a White machine, entered in the Schanden trophy event, for private owners by H. O. Stenzel, Milwaukee, Mr. Stenzel driving. The press car arrived at 8:35. Four minutes later Car No. 1, a Buick entered by the Hokanson Auto company of Madison with Emil Hokanson at the wheel, arrived, followed closely by No. 22, a Franklin, entered in the Schanden event, and driven by J. D. Babcock, its owner. The other cars in the order in which they arrived were as follows:

- No. 3, Case—Case T. M. Company, Racine; Jake Hanson, driver, 8:40.
- No. 3, King—Hustis Bros., Milwaukee; P. B. Hustis, driver, 8:42.
- No. 6, Ford—Hickman-Lauson-Dier, driver, 8:47.
- No. 4, Kirt—Bates-Odenbrett Auto Company, Milwaukee; James Holmes, driver, 8:48.
- No. 5, Hupmobile—J. E. Morehouse, driver, 8:49.
- No. 8, Studebaker—Surgeon's car, 8:55.
- No. 12, White—Bates-Odenbrett company; Charles Johnson or R. G. Bates, driver, 8:56.
- No. 7, Planders—"20" Thom Auto company, Oshkosh; Thomas R. Bell, driver, 8:57.
- No. 9, Oakland—C. F. Spooner, Madison; C. F. Spooner, driver, 8:57.
- No. 11, Marlow—W. E. Allen company, Milwaukee; H. R. Gallun, driver, 8:57.
- No. 10, Paige-Detroit, J. D. R. Rockstead; R. D. Rockstead, driver, 9:00.

The last car in was the judge's car, a Steven-Duryea, driven by Faustin Prinz, Milwaukee, one of the judges of the tour, who came in just behind the Paige-Detroit. The latter car was the last to leave the city.

Thus far the cars had encountered no difficulties and all had perfect scores. Yesterday's run was an ideal one, the roads being good all the way from Milwaukee to Beloit, and the motorists reported no trouble in getting through from Beloit to this city. The route today covered but 133 miles, and it was expected they would arrive in Baraboo this afternoon about four or five o'clock. At Madison this noon the tourists were the guests of the Madison Dealers' Association.

OPEN MOTORCYCLE MEET IN COLUMBUS TOMORROW.

Columbus, O., July 16.—Numerous parties of motorcyclists, many of them from distant parts of the country, have arrived in Columbus during the past twenty-four hours in readiness for the opening of the annual national meet of the Federation of American Motorcyclists. The meet will open tomorrow and continue through the remainder of the week. From present indications it will be the greatest gathering of the two-wheel devotees since the big national meets were held years ago during the palm days of the League of American Wheelmen. The races will be conducted on the half-mile board track recently completed here. The big feature will be a five-mile national professional championship race, for which the Motorcycle Manufacturers' Association is offering a $200 cup.

RIVER RISES RAPIDLY FOLLOWING HEAVY RAIN.

Comes Up From 8-12 Inches Below Government Mark Friday to 12-12 Inches Above. Following the heavy rainfall Friday night the Rock river experienced one of the most rapid changes in level that has ever been observed. The water was 8-12 inches below the government mark in the upper dam Friday. By three o'clock Sunday afternoon it was 5-3-4 over the mark, at 2 p. m. Monday, 9-1-2, and at 9 a. m. today 1-1-2 inches over the mark. Last year at this time the water was down to the mark and the turbines had been stopped to allow a head to form. Had rain not fallen the situation could have been worse this year. The river will continue to be high for a week or ten days as all the tributaries of the upper Rock are swollen. Where the Northwestern railway crosses the Rock river west of Jefferson the stream is over its banks.

The area of high atmospheric pressure that has been the cause of the cool weather of the past day or two is moving rapidly northeastward over the lake region. The sudden cooling along its front has been the cause of rain in the vicinity of Lakes Huron and Erie, and in the Ohio valley. Louisville reports a heavy rainfall of .122. Local rains have occurred on the south Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Jacksonville reports a downpour of 3.14 inches.

A small area of low barometer is moving eastward through Manitoba and the Dakotas, attended by a slight rise in temperature and local rains. It will probably pass over Wisconsin during the next two days. Following it is another area of high barometer and cool weather.

REPUBLICANS PLAN FOR BIG GATHERING TO TALK POLITICS

Gathering of members of the G. O. P. in Jansville on 22nd of Present Month.

Politics in the twenty-second senatorial district, which includes Rock and Walworth counties, are looking up and the call for a conference of republicans of this district to gather in Jansville on Monday, July 22nd, will start things moving. The call for the conference states that it is to discuss senatorial candidates to be placed in nomination at the September primaries, to fill the place now held by State Senator John M. Whitehead, who has declined to again make the race.

There have been several candidates talked of throughout the district. Assemblyman Gettifer of Edgerton being an avowed aspirant for the office; former Assemblyman L. C. Whitte of Edgerton also being talked of; Assemblyman Grant U. Fisher of Jansville, Mr. Chamberlain of Beloit, and Mayor Cunningham of the same city. It is thought that the conference may decide upon some one man and urge his nomination at the September primaries.

The call for the meeting makes it open to all republicans and practical whippersnappers of the old factional fight. It should prove a most interesting affair and will doubtless be well attended. The call is signed by Charles B. Salmon and Orville Morse of Rock county, and Frank H. Johnson of Walworth, and is as follows:

To the Republicans of the Twenty-second Senatorial District: There will be a republican conference for the twenty-second senatorial district, composed of Rock and Walworth counties, held at the court house in Jansville on Monday, July 22, at two o'clock p. m. The purpose of the conference is to consider the matter of a senatorial candidate to be voted for at the September primary. All republicans in the district are invited to attend and participate in the proceedings.

ENGLAND'S PROTEST.

England evidently forgets that it is the United States that is building the Panama canal and that it is the United States that expects to police it and control it after it is completed. On the other hand England sees great peril to its shipping industry when congress proposes to rehabilitate the famous dyes of the American clipper by granting certain privileges to the American registered boats which may pass through its locks.

England makes haste to protest on this requirement and alleges it is a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty under which the canal was constructed. "The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations observing these rules on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination against any such nation, or its citizens or subjects, in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic or otherwise."

It will be readily seen that this clause is susceptible of more than one construction. Great Britain holds that it forbids discrimination in favor of the United States itself as well as in favor of any other nation; the United States contention is that the clause has reference entirely to nations other than itself, and that it is left perfectly free to use the canal to its own advantage, to the extent at least of passing its merchant ships through it free of toll. In the opinion of Secretary Knox, Secretary Stimson, Senator Lodge and others who have given thought to the subject, the conditions under which the United States proposes to deal with American vessels using the canal are in no wise calculated to discriminate against any other nation. The senior senator from Massachusetts, whose intimate relations with foreign affairs for a number of years will be accepted as 'peculiarly qualifying' him to speak on the subject, maintains, it is understood, that if vessels engaged in the coastwise trade are required to pay the tolls into the treasury, and they are subsequently returned to the vessel owners, they will be essentially subsidies and cannot by any reasonable construction be regarded as a violation of the treaty.

At any rate England has filed its protest and the democratic members of congress are prone to disregard it and pass the measure as originally designed. Then will come explanations and more discussions owing to the ambiguity of the reading of this particular portion of the treaty in question.

IS MOST BITTER.

The Milwaukee Sentinel is most bitter in its denouncement of the visit of Henry Cochems to Colonel Roosevelt's home at Oyster Bay, and his promise that Wisconsin progressives would support the Colonel at the coming election. The Sentinel is no tin the councils of the Wisconsin progressives. Far from it! But it makes a suggestion relative to the possibility of William Mitchell Lewis of Racine being a candidate on the republican ticket for governor, as opposed to McGovern, that may bear fruit. It also tells a little inside history as to the recent democratic state convention that is good reading to those who oppose the income tax law and other measures that are equally obnoxious to the state at large. The Sentinel handles the question in the following manner:

"Also Henry F. Cochems has been to Oyster Bay. Mr. Cochems' assurance while there to the animal with the webbed antlers that the 'Wisconsin progressives will stand firmly with the colonel' puzzles one considerably. It becomes all the more puzzling when you learn that Mr. Cochems' companion on this visit was President Van Hise!

"Of course the point is that it is impossible for a 'Wisconsin progressive' to stand with Roosevelt without standing against La Follette. He may stand with Wilson without thereby losing, so to speak, his 'progressive' union card, but not with Roosevelt."

"So the question arises, who are the 'Wisconsin progressives' so airily referred to by Mr. Cochems? "They can not be followers of Mr. La Follette, since the senator is at the present time by all odds the bitterest and keenest assailant of Roosevelt, and is warning 'Wisconsin progressives' that the candidacy of the ally of Perkins and Bill Plinn is absolutely dishonest and an unclean thing which no true 'progressive' can afford to touch with the tongue."

"And how does the elusive and craftylike Gov. McGovern feel on that proposition? If half that is said and suspected of the governor's Rooseveltian philanderings be true, Mr. La Follette's savage assaults on the political depravity and false pretenses of the political Caliban at Oyster Bay are pretty nearly tantamount to reading McGovern out of the 'progressive' tabernacle."

"The logic is as plain as a pikestaff. La Follette denounces Roosevelt as a sham, a traitor, a trust wolf in the 'progressive' sheepfold; so it certainly follows that 'Wisconsin progressives' must abjure Roosevelt on pain of excommunication—that is, if La Follette, and not Cochems or McGovern, is the 'progressive' master in this state.

"And what is Mr. McGovern going to do to clear up his own position? It will soon be time to fish or cut bait on this La Follette vs. Roosevelt proposition. Under which king, governor?"

"Manipulating a democratic convention in order to hobble a formidable democratic opponent and boost the stock of an easy mark who is a mere pawn in the game, is all very well and a smart Celtic trick. But there are the republican primaries—why, some unlucky turn of the wheel might any moment throw up some red blooded, likable young opponent, like William Mitchell Lewis, who might under the new conditions this time run you off your legs; and certainly would do it, should La Follette pass the word."

VAN HISE BUSY.

Perhaps it is so that he can study politics first hand in order to give a good illustration to the classes, he does not teach, caused President Charles Van Hise, head of the Wisconsin state university who is paid by the hard earned taxes of the workers, to visit Governor Woodrow Wilson, democratic nominee for president on Saturday and then journey up to Oyster Bay on Sunday to visit the big Bull Moose. Van Hise is a busy man and it is wonderful how he finds time to attend to the business of the university he is head of at all. It must be pleasing to Brother Board to learn that Van Hise is adhering to his stern determination to walk the chalk line of academic duty and keep out of politics. Of course his visit to Oyster Bay and Sea Girt was merely for research purposes and as Brother Debs and Brother Chafin are still in the field it is possible he may also visit them before returning to his real duty of controlling Wisconsin politics by suggestion.

MANIA FOR SPEED.

Janesville today caught a glimpse of the autos in the state reliability run from Milwaukee through the state and back again to the Cream City. It was just a glimpse for the speed mania which came over the auto owners compels them to journey along so swiftly that the race goes to the fastest usually. The Englishman tells us we live too fast and the auto travel demonstrates this fact, today's reliability run being a fair example of existing conditions.

K. C. PICNIC WILL BE HELD JULY 25

Committees of Janesville and Beloit Lodges Decide to Hold it on a Thursday Instead of Saturday.

The joint picnic of the Janesville and Beloit councils, Knights of Columbus, which it was previously announced would be held at Yeat's park on Saturday, July 27, has been set for Thursday, July 25. A meeting of the committees from both councils was held recently, and it was decided then to change the date, although the Beloit council had at first desired to hold it on a Saturday. This, however, would have been inconvenient for the Janesville Knights, so the change was made. The members of the Janesville committee were James Cronin, James Emerson, and Thomas Ewing, and from the Beloit council, John B. Clark, Edward Rindhart, John B. Clark, and Edward Rindhart. Two five-inning games of baseball will be played between the two councils, one between two nines composed of the older men and the other between squads picked from the younger members. An excellent program of sports promises to furnish amusements for the crowds throughout the day. There will be dancing in the pavilion in the evening.

Marshall, democratic candidate for vice president today received at the state capitol twenty members of the democratic national committee who at the invitation of Thomas Taggart, committeeman from Indiana had stopped in this city on their way home from the reorganization meeting at Chicago. Speeches pleading enthusiastic cooperation during the campaign were delivered by several members of the committee which Governor Marshall replied. He thanked the members for their felicitations and said speaking of the democratic party, "It means to me that the democratic party should meet changing conditions in protecting the people against the special interests, I am progressive."

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

JOHN AND MRS. JOHN.

"John, I don't see why you do not fix that back door. I've told you about it several times."

John replies in like tone. The red blood flares up into Mrs. John's face.

Retorts are handed back and forth and to end the controversy John dares out:

"That door will not get fixed till I get ready, and it will not be any sooner because of your continual nagging."

He goes out slamming the door behind him, which is peculiarly a masculine manner of emphasis.

The fact is John should have fixed the door when his wife asked him. It would have required only a few minutes. John did not regard the matter as important, but Mrs. John was greatly annoyed. A little thing had caused a big fuss.

By and by John cooled off and sat down to think.

He was too hasty. Did he not know his wife's nerves usually were a little frayed of nagging. Why had he not fixed the door before this? And why should he get so angry at her—be a big man and she a woman, weary and nervous? What a brave little wife! Always had she done her part, and then some. She had saved his money, slaved for him and the children, and, though sometimes she did raise her voice impatiently, what a lot of things she had to vex her, the poor dear!

Mrs. John also thought:

Why did she lose her temper? Of course she was feeling bad this morning. True, John was forgetful about little things, but after all he was a very good husband. He worked hard and stayed at home evenings. How kind he had been when she was very ill! He remembered her birthdays. And with tearful eyes she called to memory how he stood by her side in the vigils of the night, and how together they had fought black death away from the baby's cradle, and—

When John came home in the evening they looked into each other's eyes, smiled and were glad.

But—

What has happened may happen again—and again.

If John and his wife shall not learn from their domestic difficulties the need of dignity and poise and forbearance and silence; if they shall not learn how necessary to their happiness are peace and love and resignation; if they shall not realize that the tremendous issues of married life are dependent upon patience and kindness and self control and forgiveness—upon such trifles as fixing the back door, why—

Let us hope they may learn.

Looking Far Into the Future. Italy has added to her agricultural area by draining the great Fucina marshes and thus providing a living for hundreds of thousands of her poverty-stricken population. It will probably be hundreds of years before America is so thickly populated that additional area will of necessity have to be acquired for farming, but when the time arrives there will be engineers able and willing to drain the great lakes.

Penalty of Human Folly.

The efforts now to save the chestnut trees emphasize nature's revenge for the needless slaughter of the birds. Bird conservation is one of the important factors in forestry, but if human carelessness or wantonness destroys the natural means of tree defenses, it follows that men are left to their own inadequate devices to repair the blunder, in this case worse than a crime.—Baltimore American.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. JEFFERSON COUNTY INSANE PATIENT WAS TAKEN HERE

Guy Stone, an inmate of the Jefferson county insane asylum, was taken into custody by Sheriff E. H. Ransom about seven o'clock last evening. The man was found wandering about in the vicinity of Milton avenue but was unable to inform the sheriff where he belonged. After calling up several of the county asylums by telephone, it was finally discovered that the man belonged to the Jefferson county institution and one of the attendants was expected this afternoon to take charge of the patient. How long he had been at large was unknown but it was thought he had been wandering in the country near Milton avenue for several days.

SUSPICIOUS WOUNDS

CAUSE FOR INQUEST

DISTRICT ATTORNEY TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF MAN WHO FELL FROM TRAIN NEAR EVANSVILLE MONDAY.

COMPANION ARRESTED

Frank Schmidt Who Started Out From Janesville With His Friend, Held in Connection With Affair.

Suspicious wounds closely resembling knife stabs, according to physicians, found on the body of a man, whose name is said to be Frank Sladky, who fell from a passenger train near Evansville late yesterday afternoon, resulted in the decision of District Attorney Stanley G. Dunwiddie to hold an inquest. A jury of six men was ordered drawn at Evansville this morning after Mr. Dunwiddie had investigated the man's death and the date of the inquest was set for Friday morning at Evansville.

Frank Schmidt, a companion of Sladky, who was stealing a ride on the engine tank, is under arrest and is being held at the county jail pending the outcome of the inquiry. Schmidt was taken into custody at Brooklyn last evening by Deputy Sheriff Schulte of Dane county and was given into the hands of Turnkey Philo Kemp this morning.

According to Schmidt's story both he and his companion had been working for the Rock county sugar company and had been employed for some time on farms in the vicinity of Janesville. They quit work at noon yesterday and after visiting several saloons in the vicinity of the Northwestern depot became more or less intoxicated.

They determined to leave Janesville and caught a ride on the north bound passenger which leaves this city for Madison about six o'clock. About a mile out of Janesville, Schmidt says, his companion attempted to crawl over the side of the train. Sladky, who was in the car, and in so doing he slipped and fell to the ground. The train passed over his right foot.

Arriving at Brooklyn Schmidt informed a brakeman on the train what had happened and a train was sent out from Evansville to pick up the man. Schmidt was taken into custody at Brooklyn on suspicion. He was then in a bad state of intoxication according to the Deputy Sheriff.

In addition to the bruises incident to his fall from the train Sladky, who lived until two o'clock this morning, was found to have suffered cuts and gashes over his body of a more or less serious nature, which were taken to indicate that he had met with foul play, or that in an encounter with an opponent he had been pushed from the train.

His left ear was split crosswise, there was a wound on his right breast which might have been inflicted by a knife, there was a bad cut on his left shoulder, which physicians said might be a cut or a stab, and there were a number of superficial cuts about the groin. He died from his injuries about two o'clock this morning.

District Attorney Dunwiddie and Turnkey Kemp went to Evansville this morning and Mr. Kemp went on to Brooklyn to take charge of Schmidt, in his cell in the jail this afternoon Schmidt declared that he had had no trouble with his companion and that his death was due entirely to the fact that he was drunk and was careless in trying to move about on the fast moving train.

Schmidt stated that he had known Sladky for about a week and had worked with him on farms near Janesville. He had never quarreled with him, he said. Schmidt did not even know his companion's name except that his given name was Frank. That his surname was Sladky was taken from a slip of paper found in his pocket. Both men were foreigners and Schmidt spoke English rather brokenly. He said he had come to Janesville from Marquette, Mich.

It was rumored shortly after the accident that there was a third man connected with the affair but subsequent investigation dispelled any suspicions in this direction. Schmidt denied the presence of any third man and when questioned concerning the death and his possible implication, indicated by his manner and words that such a thing was highly impossible and asserted several times: "They talk too much."

Mrs. Lovejoy Forced to Give Up Leadership in Suffrage Work—Committee to Name Chairman.

At the meeting of the Woman's Political Equality League at library hall yesterday afternoon, Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy presented her resignation as chairman of the league. She assured the members of the league, however, that she would give her support to the cause every way possible.

Mrs. E. Capelle as vice-president will take up the work which Mrs. Lovejoy has so ably carried on until the nominating committee composed of Mrs. Capelle, Mrs. Archie Ried, and Miss May Clark, elect a new chairman.

Matters incident to the week's campaign which has just been closed, and in regard to the work of the league for the fall were discussed at the meeting. It was decided to keep up the campaign in the county and several torchlight speakers will be secured to address gatherings at different cities during August and September.

LOCAL JEWELER LEADS

WATCH WORLD

J. J. Smith Produces A Watch That Has Had the Watchmakers of the Country Guessing for Years.

Mr. J. J. Smith, who came here a few months ago from the Standard Watch Co. of Newark, N. J., where he was employed as Master Watchmaker, and located a retail jewelry business at 313 W. Milw. St., has just completed work on a time piece that bids fair to revolutionize the low priced watch industry.

For years watchmakers have been working to produce a watch that would retail at not more than $2.50 and still retain the appearance and workings of a watch. To explain it is necessary to state that the average cheap watch is not a watch but a small clock placed in a large watch case.

The "wind and set," the escapement, train, etc., all in the ordinary cheap watch, are clock features.

The time piece produced by Mr. Smith is a watch in every way. Not only the works are watch works but the case and finish are all based on standard watch designs. It has the Standard Pendant set as distinguished from the "push in" set of the clock watch; its works are placed in a size 16 case and also its time keeping qualities are such that it may rightly be called a watch.

But the remarkable feature of the time piece is the fact that Mr. Smith designed and made every part on his workbench here in Janesville which probably could not be duplicated in the state.

Mr. Smith is in touch with a number of watch factories and probably will sell the model for the new watch in the immediate future. At the present time it is on display in his show case and he will be glad to show it to any one interested.

The flesh was so badly mashed that it was necessary to remove more of it at the Mercy hospital. He was removed to his home at 513 Lion street, where he is resting as easily as possible, although the injury causes intense pain. He will be laid up for some time because of the injury.

TEXAS AND ARKANSAS PEACHES ON MARKET

Fruit From The South Reported Unusually Good While Michigan Crop Is in Poor Condition.

Trade reports from Texas and Arkansas state that the peach crop which has just started movement toward northern markets, is one of the best which has been harvested. Says a report from Scottsville, Texas: "The quality of Elbertas is way above the average and buyers are taking the fruit at liberal quantities. Unless the trade wakes up and sends its orders quickly it will find that the crop has been exhausted." A car shortage is one reason for a slow movement of the fruit from the south but most of the early crop from Texas has already been marketed.

Reports from Arkansas as to the condition of the peach crop are equally flattering. A correspondent for a trade paper writing from Fort Smith, says:

"Arrangements are being rapidly completed for handling the Elberta peach crop, which will begin to move in cars by July 20. The crop is estimated at 4,000 cars from this district and is one of the finest in quality ever produced here. A careful examination shows the crop to be in almost perfect condition, free from freckles and no indication of brown rot. Weather has been rainy but cool for the past two weeks and the only result of this condition so far is to indicate greater size and quality. With favorable conditions from now on the crop will be marketed in perfect condition. The bushel basket will be used by a majority of shippers."

Severe freezing weather last winter which killed large numbers of orchards and seriously damaged others, is the chief factor responsible for an almost absolute failure of the Michigan peach crop. In many cases there will be no fruit at all for shipping from some sections. The trees that are still alive, however, are in good condition and indicate a good yield for next year.

Heavy rains have done damage to the ripening crop of Elbertas in Georgia and much of the fruit is rotting and dropping off the trees before it can be marketed. Good prices prevail for the crop when received in good condition and it is thought that a week or so more will see the last of the Georgia peaches on the market.

John And The Burglar Alarm.

OSBORNE S had their chickens stolen last night," said Dolly at the dinner table. "Isn't it terrible that no one seems able to catch that chicken thief? I suppose ours will go next."

"I'd shoot any thief I saw stealing my chickens," said John.

"But you never see him. That's the trouble. In the morning the chickens are gone. That's all there is to it."

John ate a few minutes in silence. At last he said, "I think I'll put a burglar alarm in my chicken house."

"Oh!" exclaimed Dolly, "and when it went off, you'd rush out to get shot."

"If it did go off," went on Dolly, "we might phone the police. They could catch the thief and that would be the end of him. Think how glad everybody would be."

John looked gratified. He hadn't foreseen this. But it certainly would be a big thing for the neighborhood.

"I think I can fix it myself," said John. "I only need some batteries and wire and a buzzer. It isn't much trouble."

The next night he worked industriously, the Kid open-eyed at the mysterious performance of the bell in the house, getting impatiently in everybody's way, and tangleing wires and mixing up batteries as only curious youth can.

At last the ordeal was over, and John went to bed secure in the knowledge his chickens were as safe as in the ark.

The next night in the still small hours, the tinkle of a bell aroused him.

"Oh, John!" exclaimed Dolly, grasping him frantically. "It's the chicken thief. Don't go."

"I must," said John firmly, though he felt no eagerness about it.

"You'll be shot," wailed Dolly. "I'd rather have all the chickens stolen than have you hurt."

"Oh," said John, "chicken thieves are cowards. The alarm has probably scared him off." Nevertheless he dressed quite slowly.

Dolly nervously tiptoed downstairs and waited in the kitchen for results.

"Nothing doing," said John after a few minutes, coming in. "I guess the alarm scared him off."

The next night the alarm sounded again. Once more, after frantic pleadings from Dolly, John boldly sought the chicken house, and once more returned to announce fruitless results.

The third night when the alarm went off, John said explosive and unintelligible things under his breath, and then wearily got out of bed.

The next night at the dinner table he announced, "I tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to watch that chicken house to-night. That thief may just be trying to tire us out, and when he thinks we won't pay attention to the alarm any more, he'll get in his work."

"But he may shoot you," exclaimed Dolly.

"Oh, fudge! How many times have you had me shot since that drafted alarm was put in?"

"I won't be able to sleep a wink until you come in," wailed Dolly. "I just know you'll be killed."

But John scorned all such possibility, and after dark, armed with a revolver and a small stool, departed to the vicinity of the chicken-house.

Just as he was dozing, he heard suppressed giggles and saw two small, boyish figures stealing in the direction of the barn.

"You young scamps," he yelled, rushing for them.

With startled shrieks they fled, and all he had to reward his labor was a small cap which he found the next morning.

The Kid eyed it silently. To him it looked suspiciously like the cap of his particular chum, to whom he had shown the burglar alarm the day after its installation and explained its mysterious powers. And he knew this chum had an older brother who had wires and bells and batteries all over their house.

But the Kid thought it wisest to hold his peace.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I know a young man of whom I think very much. I would like to go with him, but he makes no advances. Would it do for me to take his part? If so, how should I begin? — ANXIOUS.

If he wanted to go with you he would not be backward about it. Be pleasant and friendly to him and possibly he will be enough interested in you to wish more of your company.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am desirous of starting a mail order business. (1)—Must I have the article patented? (2)—I intended to advertise in two or three popular magazines. Do you think good results can be gained that way?

MRS. MAIL ORDER.

(1)—Yes. (2)—Yes; but don't neglect newspaper advertising, especially in the small towns.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young fellow nineteen years old and am going with a girl seventeen years old. Could we get married in St. Joseph, Mich., without any growing-up person to go with us? — A. S.

You are both under legal age and could not marry without your parents' consent. Wait till you are both of legal age and then get married openly and honestly. A secret marriage is just a "sneak" and nothing to be proud of.

Dear Mrs. Thompson, I am eighteen years old and do not go out with any boys. About two years ago I went with a boy, whom I admired very much, but we quarreled. It seems I cannot make up my mind to go around with any other boy though I got quite a few invitations. I do not go because I do not like them. At home they chide me about becoming a crabby old maid. What would you advise me to do, as I seem to get more peevish every day.

JEAN.

Stop thinking about the other boy. He has probably forgotten about you long ago. Get interested in somebody's troubles besides your own and learn how to sympathize with others. If you do not like the other boys, there must be some fault in you, my dear, because some of them must be nice enough for friends. Make up your mind to be sweet and companionable, and that you're going to grow more beautiful in your mind and heart every day in your life, whether you're an old maid or a grandmother in the end.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What is suitable mourning for an infant?

L. M. P.

Infants are never required to wear mourning. It would be a shame to put any emblem of sorrow on the little innocent things.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen and have been going with a boy nineteen about two years. (1)—Would it be wrong for me to kiss him? We are not engaged though I think we understand each other. (2)—Am I too young to wear willow plumes? (3)—What would be nice to serve at a "baking" party?

ORPHAN GIRL.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl 17-12 years old, and have never had any young men come to the house. Now there is a young man who has asked to come in. Could you tell me how to entertain him? We have no musical instrument and my mother can't talk very plain English. — LA VERNE R.

Find out the things he is interested in and get him to talk about them; then listen and learn. Read the newspapers and inform yourself about what is happening in your city, and if there is any chief topic of interest, speak of it and find out what he thinks about the matter.

You might find some little parlor games in the stores that would be nice to play to take up the evening. If you do any embroidery, teach him how to do it, too, just for fun. And let him do all the talking, if he wants to.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

AN OBSOLETE WORD.

A COLLEGE president who was lecturing on the type of girl who succeeds, and the type of girl who fails, declared that one of the most common members of that latter class is the girl who always tries to blame anything untoward that happens to her, upon someone else. This kind of girl, he said, if she was passing through a gate and there was nobody else in sight, and she should tear her gown, would still think that the accident was somebody's fault.

We all know people like that—people who regard every unfortunate happening in the home or outside of it as somebody's fault, and are perfectly frantic if they cannot find someone to blame for anything that disturbs or inconveniences them.

When anything disagreeable occurs, these folks must immediately let off steam by blaming someone, and when, as sometimes happens, the disagreeable occurrence cannot really be traced to anyone, these people become absolutely explosive with pent-up blame.

For instance, in an office in which I once worked, the head man was of this type. One summer day when all the windows were open as a matter of course, the whole office force happened to be out of the room.

One girl was at dinner, by his permission; another had gone downstairs with him to take down an important interview; and the office boy had been sent on an errand. During this period a quick summer shower came up and some important papers were injured by the rain. It was really impossible for that man to blame anyone for this unfortunate happening, and we almost feared that his pent-up irritation would do him physical injury.

In all too many households, where some of the family have this desire to blame someone for everything that happens, the patient mother is the scapegoat of every accident and every irritation.

"Why wasn't the telephone answered today?" demands the son of the family. "I tried six times to get the house and they told me you didn't answer. It's too bad, mother. I don't see any use in our having a telephone if you can't answer it." Whereupon the patient Mrs. Griselda attempts to palliate her son's irritation by explaining that it was the maid's afternoon out, that her daughter was making candy in the kitchen, and that she herself had gone out on an errand for father.

"Why can't we ever have dinner ready on time?" raves father. "The meat didn't come until late? Why didn't you tell him what time you wanted it? You did? I don't believe you made it very plain. You're always telling about some thing or other being late. I should think you could manage to have things delivered when you want them. I pay enough for them."

A great many things happen in this world that are nobody's fault—some things just plain happen, and others are unfortunate accidents or mistakes. It is a relief to have someone to blame when any of these things irritates one, but a relief of which only selfish and unjust people avail themselves; and in the truly generous person's dictionary, "fault" is an entirely obsolete word; the words "mistake" or "accident" have quite taken its place.

"I wish I could understand what boys see in green apples," remarked the woman who moved out to a suburban home in search of peace and quiet.

"We have a few apple trees on our grounds, and on them are a few—very few, hard green apples. They are intensely bitter and one bite would cure any ordinary adult of a wish for more."

But those apple trees are proving the bane of my life. Every boy in the community has them spotted, and my time is taken up chasing them. Why, I don't ever dare go downtown to do some necessary shopping, because if I do the whole swarm of youngsters will be over here and there wouldn't be an apple left by the time I got back home."

"When we bought this place the apple trees were one of the inducements that made me decide in favor of it. I always wanted to own a place with some apple trees of my very own. I had visions of going out and picking my own apples and munching as many as I liked, fresh from the tree. I hoped to even store away a barrel or two of them in the basement this winter. I had visions of apple jelly, which my husband dotes on. But this particular year, when I had hoped for so much, the apple trees have gone in for a rest, and the little fruit they do descend to grow will be spoiled by those boys."

"I'm not the only sufferer, either. Anybody who has fruit trees, or fruit of any kind, suffers, I hear. Why, one of our neighbors, who has a big place with all kinds of fruit trees, had to invest in a shotgun, and the other night he scared us out of senses by firing off that gun at some marauders."

"I used to think that I only had to get away from the city to find peace and quiet, but I've about made up my mind that it's more wearisome to live in a place like this, where you have outside property to protect and where there ain't any policemen to help you protect it."

In the city, if anybody enters your house and steals anything, no matter how trivial, he's called a thief and punished accordingly. If you can catch him. But out here a person can come into your grounds and take your fruits and think he has a perfect right to do it. As one of those boys said to me yesterday when I caught him at our apples:

"Well, I guess I have a right to take a few!"

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Cravel

until they supplant the old fashioned kind that makes its exit along with the month of July we must make the most of what is left.

Strawberry Bombe is an epicurean

The strawberry season is over, but the call of "Strawberries," in linked sweetness, long drawn out, still re-sounds through the streets and we acknowledge publicly a weakness for the plump, luscious, berries by stopping the Roman or Celt who proclaims their presence.

At least that is what I did this morning and whether these late survivals are of those techniques or of storage, leftovers they certainly tempted as agreeably as the first fruits of June.

Before these transient blessings fade for this season do not fail to have a strawberry sponge:

Soak one and a third tablespoons of gelatin in a half a cup of cold water and dissolve by adding the same amount of boiling water. Add a cup of sugar, and a cup of crushed strawberries; juice of one lemon. Set this in a pan of cold water until it commences to thicken, then whisk briskly until it froths; and add the whites of three eggs beaten to a foamy lightness and two cups of this cream. Whip until the mixture is well combined; turn into a mold, smooth evenly and chill. Remove from mold to serving dish and surround with selected berries.

Strawberry ice makes one murmur that "All that's bright" must fade, all that's sweet was made, to be lost when sweetest—even while freezing the mixture. Sprinkle a box of hulled berries with a cup of sugar, cover and let stand two hours, mash and squeeze through a double thickness of cheese cloth, to the juice thus obtained add one cup of water and sugar to suit the taste and a tablespoon of lemon juice. Freeze.

There is a new race of overbearing strawberries, that fruit from early spring until frost, now being perfect, led by a western plant wizard, but lyric that thrills the organs of taste, for this delicious compound makes a caramel by shaking a cup of sugar in a pan over heat until it is as brown as maple sugar, add a cup of hot water and set off the fire to dissolve while you beat the yolks of four eggs stiff, to them add a cup of cream whipped and the caramel syrup; a half a cup of nut meats, a teaspoon of vanilla and a few grains of salt. Press a pint of berries through a puree or fruit sieve, to remove the seeds and crush them; add to the above mixture. Chill. Now line a melon mold with strawberry ice and put the above mixture in the center, filling to overflowing. Adjust the cover and pack in equal parts of salt and ice and let stand for three hours.

Between the passing of the strawberry and the advent, in full force, of the other small fruits there comes the mulberry; these are seldom brought to the table, though sweet toothed birds and wiseurchins flock about the trees and quarrel over the crop.

The black mulberry, upon the whole, is better than the white with sugar and cream, but having tasted either with proper "fixins" you will seldom get a satisfaction.

The mulberry tree is planted for decorative purposes by landscape gardeners and by bird lovers but seldom for its fruit; those who have proved its goodness can often find a few baskets on the open market this month.

"A mulberry pie," says father, "is the best of all pies." "I thought you liked elderberry best," says mother. "I do," says he "when it's here, but bake a mulberry one now."

This is mother's recipe: "Pick the berries as they fall to the ground; if you have both white and black varieties you may mix them. After they are stemmed, wash thoroughly and sprinkle with sugar and cover while making the pastry. Bake with an upper and lower crust and serve hot with cream and sugar."

THIS WOMAN'S TROUBLES GONE

Terrible, Cramps, Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Misery—Her Story of How She Got Well Again.

Hindsboro, Ill.—"Your remedies have relieved me of all my troubles. I would have such bearing down, misery and cramps and such weak, nervous, dizzy spells that I could hardly stay up long enough to get a meal."

"The doctor's medicine did me no good so I changed to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got good results from the first bottle. I kept on taking it and used the Sensitive Wash with it, until I was well again. I think every woman who suffers as I have, could take no better medicine."—Mrs. CHARLES MATTHEWSON, Box 68, Hindsboro, Ill.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

ILLITERACY RECORD IN COLONIAL DAYS

Interesting Data Contained in Publication of United States Bureau of Education.

Illiteracy in this country in Colonial days is a subject discussed in an historical bulletin soon to be issued for free distribution by the United States Bureau of Education. The data were gathered by an examination of signatures to the extant legal and other documents of Colonial days, for the purpose of ascertaining the number of signers who had to make their marks. While the data are not altogether conclusive they seem to indicate that Massachusetts occupied the most advanced educational position in the seventeenth century, while Virginia brings up the rear. The Dutch of New York and the Germans of Pennsylvania occupy middle positions. These are all the colonies for which data have been compiled in the Bureau of Education's bulletin.

The monograph says, in part: "An analysis of 360 men's names examined covering the years from 1654 to 1675, 21 per cent made their marks. Of 231 men's signatures at Plattsburgh, covering a longer period, 19 per cent made their marks. Of the German male immigrants above 16 years of age who came to Pennsylvania in the last half of the eighteenth century, 11,223 names have been counted, with the result of 26 per cent who made their marks.

"A significant result appeared from our study of illiteracy, namely, that the Dutch innaughtants of Plattsburgh made continuous improvement in this respect, the percentage of illiteracy decreasing gradually from 40 per cent in 1675 to about 6 per cent in 1738."

A most painstaking count of the seventeenth century Virginians indicates that of 2,165 male adults who signed jury lists, 46 per cent made their marks; and of 12,445 male adults who signed deeds and depositions, 40 per cent made their marks.

"In the case of the Dutch women fewer names were collected, and the showing was not so good." Of the 154 signatures of Dutch women in New York which were available, an illiteracy of 60 per cent was indicated. Of 3,066 women signing deeds and depositions in Virginia, 75 per cent made their marks.

"By way of comparison with these results a study was made of the signatures to deeds executed in Suffolk County (Boston), Mass., for two periods in the seventeenth century a generation apart," says the bulletin. "Two volumes of the published deeds were used, the first covering the period 1653-1656, the other, 1686-1697."

In both the former and the latter period, the percentage of men who made their marks remained constant, at 11 per cent, while the proportion of illiteracy among the women decreased from 53 per cent to 38 per cent.

"These data are exceedingly interesting and in a measure do indicate the educational conditions of the colonies," said James C. Boykin, editor of the United States Bureau of Education, yesterday. "Thus, the figures from Virginia and Massachusetts possess undoubted significance. As a rule persons who sign deeds are of the more prosperous class; therefore if 40 per cent of these documents are signed with a cross, as we find in Colonial Virginia, we may be sure that the proportion of illiteracy in the entire population was far greater.

"It must be borne in mind that these data by no means offer a final or adequate measure of educational conditions either as between the colonies or as between the past and the present. Nevertheless the figures gathered are suggestive and will probably stimulate further investigation along the same line."

The bulletin of the Bureau of Education, which deals with Colonial illiteracy, is an historical monograph entitled "The Dutch Schools of New Netherland and Colonial New York." The writer, Dr. William Heard Kilpatrick, Assistant Professor of the History of Education in Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, makes the illiteracy comparison in-dentally to his main theme, for the sake of showing the educational status of the American Dutch for the period covered in his monograph. The bulletin will be sent free upon request to the United States Commissioner of Education, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

PETITION BLANKS TO TOWN CHAIRMEN

State Highway Commission Sends Out Forms on Which to Petition For State and County Aid.

Chairmen of townships in Rock County as well as throughout the state have received blank forms from the state highway commission on which to petition their respective county boards for county and state aid for roads or bridges to be built in 1913.

These must be filled out and mailed to the county clerks before Sept. 1, next. Those towns which did not vote state aid last spring still have a chance to do so by calling a special town meeting to be held before Sept. 1. The commission asks the town chairmen of jobs down to a minimum number of jobs down to a minimum.

Reports of votes so far indicate that at least $2,000,000 worth of state aid roads and bridges will be built in 1913 and that towns in every county have voted or will vote taxes for improvements.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

THE BEE.

By Howard L. Rann.

THE bee is a small, nervous insect with four brittle legs and a self-stinging stinger which produces a very uncomfortable feeling when sat upon. There are two kinds of bees—masculine and feminine. The masculine bee is a hen-pecked individual who has about as much to say about the house as the husband of a suffragette. He is called a drone, and is not allowed to do anything but sit around and look pleasant. Like the human drone, he would faint in reproachful accents if anybody should ask him to split a little kindling or turn the wringer. It is perfectly safe to insult a drone, and he has no stinger and cannot resort to a noisy defense. The feminine bee is one of the most vicious and unrelenting specimens of the female gender known to the temperate zone. One moment she is bright and sunny as a flower, and the next minute she is a flitting from flower to flower with the gentle hum of industry and the next minute she is a stinging insect, and the next minute she is a stinging insect, and the next minute she is a stinging insect.

JOINT CELEBRATION FOR THREE CITIES?

Janesville, Beloit and Rockford Labor Unions May Observe Labor Day in This City.

At a special meeting of representatives of the Beloit, Rockford and Janesville carpenters' organizations at Beloit on Thursday evening of this week the matter of a joint celebration for the labor unions of the three cities to be held in either Janesville or Beloit on Labor Day, will be given consideration.

It is understood that both Beloit and Janesville will present an invitation for the event should it be agreed to unite for such an affair. It is thought probable, however, that Janesville will secure the honor of being host and from the success of the celebration held here last year under the auspices of the carpenters' union, there can be no doubt in regard to a similar or larger entertainment this year.

It is said that Rockford's unions have decided not to hold exercises this year although a picnic at Harlem park was thought probable at one time. The Rockford locals, however, would be willing to unite in the observance of the day with the Beloit and Janesville unions.

The annual meeting of the Carpenters' District Council of Rock River Valley, including Rockford, Beloit, and Janesville, was held Sunday afternoon in the headquarters, Carpenters' hall on East State street in Rockford.

In these days of high cost of living, a medicine that gets a man up out of bed and able to work in a few days is a safe and valuable remedy. John Heath, Michigan Bar, Cal., says: "I had kidney and bladder trouble for nearly six years, and was confined to my bed, unable to turn without help. Soon after I commenced using Foley Kidney Pills and was relieved at once." His example is worth following. Foley Kidney Pills will do for others just as much as they have done for John Heath. The All-Purpose Household Soap of Northern Europe Since 1753

FOR A CENTURY
American soap-makers have been trying to hit on the formula of the famous green soap of Northern Europe. All their attempts have failed. That formula defies discovery. Passed down from father to son since 1753, its secret is still known only to the descendants of its originator. Only because our Chief Chemist is himself a member of that family can we now offer to you here in America that greatest of all soap formulas in the shape of

GENUINE Old Country GREEN SOAP

"Old Country" is a green soft soap for universal use in household cleaning

"Old Country" is green, and it stays green under all conditions. That proves it's absolutely pure—pure that is strictly neutral with no free alkali or free acid in it. This makes "Old Country" in spite of its all-purpose household efficiency, positively beneficial for the hands.

"Old Country" is soft. Its consistency is that of jelly. It can be measured for each using. No part of it is ever wasted.

"Old Country" is soap—soap, and nothing but soap. No "filler" has been added to it. No rosin, no paraffin, grease or water to add weight, just straight, pure vegetable oils, combined by a formula which makes it "The Wizard Soap of the World."

"Old Country" is for universal use in household cleaning. There is nothing to be cleaned in any house anywhere for which it is not more efficient alone than any possible combination of compounds, soaps, powders, stonematerials or gases. You will realize this better than any words can tell once you put "Old Country" to the test in your housework.

Don't keep a big shelf full of a dozen different kinds of special cleaners—they cost too much in money and time. All you need is "Old Country" and water—and the directions for use. Alone and single-handed it beats them all for anything from floors to lace curtains, from porcelain bath-tubs to woollens, from greasy pots to chenilles, from the family laundry to your most delicate upholstery.

One trial will win you your grocer has it. Just mention "Old Country" to him over the phone. Get at least a 10c can today, and say good-bye to half your cleaning work.

ALEXANDRE DUMAS

D'Artagnan related how he had found Porthos in bed with a strained knee and Aramis at a table between two theologians. D'Artagnan also related his adventure with Mme. Bonacieux. Athos listened to him with perfect immobility of countenance and, when he had finished:

"Trifles, all that," said Athos, "nothing but trifles." That was Athos's expression.

"You always say trifles, my dear Athos," said D'Artagnan, "and that comes very ill from you, who have never been in love."

The drink deadened ere of Athos flashed, but it was only for a moment—it became dull and vacant as before.

"That's true," he said quietly. "For my part, I have never loved. I say that love is a lottery, in which he who wins wins death! You are very fortunate to have lost, believe me, my dear D'Artagnan."

"Oh, but she seemed to love me so!"

"You boy! Why, there lives not a man who has not believed, as you do, that his mistress loved him, and there lives not a man who has not been deceived by his mistress. Your misfortune is laughable. I should like to know what you would say if I were to relate to you a real tale of love."

"Which concerns you?"

"Either me or one of my friends, what matters?"

"I am all attention," said D'Artagnan.

Athos collected himself, and in proportion as he did so D'Artagnan saw that he became paler; he was at that period of intoxication in which vulgar drinkers fall and sleep. He kept himself upright and dreamed without sleeping. This somnambulism of drunkenness had something frightful in it.

"Be it done then, as you desire. One of my friends, please to observe, not myself," said Athos, interrupting himself with a melancholy smile; "one of the counts of my province, Berry, at twenty-five years of age, fell in love with a girl of sixteen, beautiful as fancy can paint. She lived in a small town with her brother, who was a cure. Both had recently come into the country; they came nobody knew whence; but when seeing her so lovely and her brother so pious, nobody thought of asking whence they came. They were said, however, to be of good extraction. My friend, who was lord of the country, might have seized her forcibly at his will, for he was master. But he was an honorable man—he married her. The fool! The ass! The idiot!"

"How so, if he loved her?" asked D'Artagnan.

"Wait," said Athos. "He took her to his chateau and made her the first lady in the province, and, in justice, it must be allowed, she supported her rank becomingly."

"Well?" asked D'Artagnan, quite excited.

"Well, one day when she was hunting with her husband," continued Athos in a low voice and speaking very quickly, "she fell from her horse and fainted; the count flew to her help, and as she appeared to be oppressed by her clothes, he ripped them open with his poignard, and in so doing laid bare her shoulder; and now, guess, D'Artagnan," said Athos, "what she had upon her shoulder."

"How can I tell?" said D'Artagnan.

"A fleur-de-lis," said Athos. "She was branded."

And Athos emptied at a single draught the glass he held in his hand.

"Horror!" cried D'Artagnan. "What do you tell me?"

"Truth! my friend—the angel was a demon; the poor young girl had been a thief!"

"And what did the count do?"

"The count was of the highest noblesse. He had on his estates the right of high and low justice. He tore the dress of the countess to pieces, tied her hands behind her and hanged her on a tree. That has cured me of beautiful, poetical and loving women," said Athos after a considerable pause, raising his head and forgetting to continue the apologue of the count.

"And her brother?" added D'Artagnan timidly.

"Oh, I inquired after him for the purpose of hanging him likewise, but he was beforehand with me. He had quitted the curacy instantly. He was doubtless the first lover who had pretended to be a cure for the purpose of getting his mistress married and securing her a position. He has been hanged before this time, I hope."

D'Artagnan could no longer endure this conversation, which had terrified away his senses. He felt quite bewildered, and, allowing his head to sink upon his hand, he pretended to sleep.

"These young fellows can none of them drink," said Athos, looking at him with pity, "and yet this is one of the best of them too."

CHAPTER XXII.

The Return.

D'ARTAGNAN was astonished by the terrible confidence of Athos, and yet many things appeared very obscure to him in this partial revelation. In the first place, it had been made by a man quite drunk to one who was half drunk, and yet in spite of the uncertainty which the vapor of three or four bottles of Burgundy carries with it to the brain, D'Artagnan, when awaking on the following morning, had every word of Athos as present to his memory as if they fell from his mouth; they had been impressed upon his mind. He found Athos quite himself again—that is to say, the most shrewd and impenetrable of men.

"I was pretty drunk yesterday, D'Artagnan," said he. "I would lay a wager I uttered a thousand absurdities."

"No," replied D'Artagnan. "If I recollect what you said it was nothing out of the common way."

"Indeed, you surprise me. I thought I had related a most lamentable history to you?" And he looked at the young man as if he would read to the very depths of his heart.

"Oh," said D'Artagnan, "it would appear that I was more drunk than you, since I remember nothing of the kind."

But this did not deceive Athos, and he resumed:

"I certainly never will get drunk again, D'Artagnan—it is too bad a habit."

D'Artagnan remained silent.

Then Athos, changing the conversation all at once:

"By the bye, I thank you for the horse you have brought me," said he. "I have parted with him."

"How?"

"Why, here is the simple fact: This morning I awoke at 6 o'clock. You were still fast asleep, and I did not know what to do with myself. I was still stupid from our yesterday's debauch. As I came into the public room I saw one of our Englishmen bargaining with a dealer for a horse, his own having died yesterday from bleeding. I drew near and found he was bidding 100 pistoles for a fine chestnut nag."

"My good gentleman, I have a horse to sell, too," said I.

"Ah, and a very fine one! I saw him yesterday—your friend's lackey was leading him."

"Do you think he is worth 100 pistoles?"

"Yes; will you sell him to me for that sum?"

"No; but I will play at dice for him."

"No sooner said than done, and I lost the horse. Ah, ah! but please to observe I won back the caparison," cried Athos.

D'Artagnan looked much disconcerted.

"That horse was to have assisted in making us known in the day of battle. It was a pledge—a remembrance. Athos, you have done very wrong."

"It vexes me greatly," continued Athos, "that you attach so much importance to these animals. For I am not yet at the end of my story."

"What else have you done?"

"After having lost my own horse, nine against ten—see how near I formed an idea of staking yours."

"Yes—but you stopped at the idea, I hope?"

"No; for I put it in execution that very minute."

"And the consequence?" said D'Artagnan in great anxiety.

"I threw, and I lost."

"What, my horse?"

"Your horse."

"Athos, this is frightful!"

"Stop a minute; you don't know all yet. I should make an excellent gambler if I were not too hot headed; but I became so, just as if I were drinking. Well, I was hot headed then—"

"Well, but what else could you play for—you had nothing left?"

"Oh! yes, yes, my friend; there was still that diamond left which sparkles on your finger, and which I observed yesterday."

"This diamond!" said D'Artagnan, placing his hand eagerly on his ring.

"And as I am a connoisseur in such things, having had a few of my own once, I estimated it at 1,000 pistoles."

"I hope," said D'Artagnan, half dead with fright, "you made no mention of my diamond?"

"On the contrary, my dear friend, this diamond became my only resource. With it I might regain our horses and their furniture and, still further, money to pay our expenses on the road."

"Athos, you make me tremble," cried D'Artagnan.

"We divided, then, this diamond into ten parts of 100 pistoles each. Ten throws of 100 pistoles each—ten throws without revenge. In thirteen throws I lost all—in thirteen throws."

"Heavens!" cried D'Artagnan, rising from the table.

"Patience, patience!" said Athos. "I had a plan. The Englishman was an original. I had seen him conversing that morning with Grimaud, and Grimaud had told me that he had made him proposals to enter into his service. I staked Grimaud—the silent Grimaud—divided into ten portions."

"Well, what next?" said D'Artagnan, laughing in spite of himself.

"Grimaud himself, understand, and with the ten parts of Grimaud, which are not worth a dustoon, I won back the diamond. Tell me, now, whether you don't think persistence is a virtue?"

"This is a droll story," cried D'Artagnan, a little consoled and holding his sides with laughter.

"You may easily guess that, finding the luck turned, I again staked the diamond. I won back your furniture, then your horse, then my furniture, then my horse, and then I lost again. To make short, I regained your furniture and then mine. That's where we left off. That was a superb throw, so I left off there."

D'Artagnan breathed as if the whole hostility had been removed from off his chest.

"Then I understand," said he timidly, "the diamond is safe. But what is the use of horse furniture without horses?"

"I have an idea concerning them. You have not played for a long time, D'Artagnan. You ought, then, to have a good hand."

"Well, what then?"

"Well, the Englishman and his companion are still here. I remarked that he regretted the horse furniture very much. You appear to think much of your horse. In your place, now, I would stake the furniture against the horse."

"But he will not be satisfied with one equipment."

"Stake both. I am not selfish, if you are."

"You would do so?" said D'Artagnan, undecided, so strongly did the confidence of Athos begin to prevail, unknown to himself.

"In one single throw."

"But having lost the horses, I am particularly anxious to preserve the furniture."

"Stake your diamond, then."

"This No, thank you; that's quite another thing. Never, never!"

"Well," said Athos, "I would propose to you to stake Planchet, but as that has already been done, the Englishman would not, perhaps, be willing. Try one throw."

"And if I lose?"

"Well, you will surrender the furniture."

"I will try one throw," said D'Artagnan.

Athos went in search of the Englishman, whom he found in the stable examining the furniture with a greedy eye. The opportunity was good. He proposed the conditions—the two furnitures against one horse or 100 pistoles, to choose. The Englishman consented.

D'Artagnan threw the dice with a trembling hand and turned up the number three. His paleness terrified Athos, who, however, contented himself with saying:

"That's a sad throw, comrade. You will have the horses and my equipment, monsieur."

The Englishman, quite triumphant, did not even give himself the trouble to shake the dice; he threw them on the table without looking at them, so sure was he of victory; D'Artagnan himself had turned on one side to conceal his ill humor.

"There, there, there!" said Athos, with his quiet tone; "that throw of the dice is extraordinary. I have only witnessed such one four times in my life. Two aces, gentlemen!"

The Englishman looked, and was seized with astonishment; D'Artagnan looked and was seized with pleasure.

"Then monsieur takes his horse back again," said the Englishman.

"Certainly," said D'Artagnan.

"Then there is no revenge?"

"Our conditions said no revenge, you will please to recollect."

"That is true; the horse shall be restored to your lackey, monsieur."

"A moment!" said Athos; "with your permission, monsieur, I wish to speak a word with my friend."

"If you please."

Athos drew D'Artagnan on one side.

"I would take the 100 pistoles. You know you have staked the furniture against the horse or 100 pistoles, at your choice."

"I will take the horse."

"In which, I repeat, you are wrong. What is the use of one horse for us two? I could not get up behind. You cannot think of humiliating me by riding by my side, prancing along upon that magnificent charger. We want money to carry us back to Paris."

"I am much attached to that horse, Athos."

"And there again you are wrong; a horse slips and injures a joint. There is a horse, or rather 100 pistoles, lost; a master must feed his horse, while, on the contrary, 100 pistoles feed their master."

"But how shall we get back to Paris?"

"Upon our lackey's backs."

"Your advice, then, is—"

"To take the 100 pistoles, D'Artagnan. With the 100 pistoles we can live well to the end of the month. We have undergone a great deal of fatigue, remember, and a little rest will do us no harm."

"I rest! Oh, no, Athos. The moment I am in Paris I shall prosecute my researches after that unfortunate woman."

"Well, you may be assured that your horse will not be half so serviceable to you for that purpose as the money."

D'Artagnan acquiesced, then, and chose the 100 pistoles, which the Englishman paid down immediately.

They then determined to depart. Peace with the landlord in addition to Athos' old horse, cost 6 pistoles. D'Artagnan and Athos took the nags of Planchet and Grimaud, and the two lackeys started on foot, carrying the saddles on their heads.
